Disturbing the Peace: The Story of Father Roy Bourgeois and the Movement to Close the School of the Americas, paperback (240 pages) by James Hodge and Linda Cooper, with a foreword by Martin Sheen, published in fall 2004 by Orbis Books. After years as a Naval officer in Viet Nam and a missionary in Bolivia, Maryknoll priest Roy Bourgeois was imprisoned for challenging the United States government's actions in Latin America. Disturbing the Peace chronicles the many activists that built the SOA Watch movement and presents new research on the actions of SOA graduates. With personal stories of how Fr. Roy learned the reality of oppression in Latin America, Disturbing the Peace is an excellent book for lending to family and friends. $20.00

The School of the Americas: Military Training and Political Violence in the Americas, paperback (296 pages) by Lesley Gill, published fall 2004 by Duke University Press. After interviews with military personnel from several Latin American nations, American University anthropology professor Lesley Gill has written a groundbreaking analysis of how SOA/ WHINSEC trainees view their role in fighting drugs and "subversives." Gill details her interviews with SOA/ WHINSEC students and staff as well as SOA Watch activists in this well-documented, eye-opening resource. $20.00
